

"The Spacecraft they do not belong..."

Once upon a time, a pink wave with an angry skirt on roared
So harsh, so brutal, so violent...
As no one dared listening to her claims, she grew huge thus delivered
Loads of pinkish, though passionate other tiny waves she begot
The King's cart, Mama Wave first threw on Houses they burnt, public spacecraft they broke
Hunger strike they went on
What the hell dared they risk their souls!
Co'z just hubbies and daddies' property they were
Weak and feeble, pink and fragile
Good for porridge, pies and pudding
House chores caretakers, they were tagged
Then they roared, so powerful more waves they tossed
With Ms. Pankhurst as Mama...
After thousands deeds, did they lastly got "the thing"
Just the right to poll? Got it right! Just the mere suffrage
Which birthed dramatic brain damage? Don't ask!
Force-fed to hide body damage? Won't tell !
And next? Male pants were tagged stronger, smarter
More fit for "rights", they thundered!
Thus, we worked, but yet they earned
Pinkish toiled and snared...
Bluish clinked and lengthened talks in pubs
Gosh! Second waves rose, resolute, forward they roared, even louder
Feymen-ists, we heard not just, but also did we see?
Strikes they stood, marches they marched
Speeches they summoned
What for? Pay same - they sounded!
Taboos they dared dress off, and named it "Made in Dagenham"
They argued, men astonished, marveled they henceforth joined
Waves kept roaring, that ship a halt needed

Fighting, they ceased not
Waves of modern 21st... What changeth?
A few dots, lines not yet.
Means need bigger waves?
If only they knew...
Gender for genre meant crap
If only they knew...
Weird for women sounded "Woe!"
They would've gotten into the nest of these "unweird" men
Who dared acknowledge:
"It's a man's world, but nothing without a "woe-man"!
If only they knew...
If only these "woe-men" knew
Girlish study not hard to get the clues
If only Emma Watson they heard,
The HeForSHE campaign they'd all join
And again, 8th March, stereotypes we despise
Equal rights we reverence
Gender equality we dismiss not
And posters, we made, talks we conducted
But still, the Bluish proclaimed: never equal rights pink skirts'll ever get
Girl -girlish, woman-womanish, pink, glossy, charming and the like
We define ourselves only not with
And if only they knew...
A bluish male fellow once wrote:
"I think women are foolish to pretend they are equal to men.
They are far superior and always have been..." Way to go!
William Golding, for merely speaking your soul out.
Slightest bit, once upon a time a battle once won
Called for being won again
Still needs be won!!!
